Union Leaders Will Start
New Wage Negotiations
On Tuesday

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(UPI)—The wage policy committee of the United Mine Workers (AFL) assembled here today to frame new soft coal contract demands which may affect the whole pattern of future industry-labor relations.

Government sources said that if the UMW strikes three weeks hence to support its demands, the walkout would bring the limping reconversion industrial machine to a virtual standstill in two weeks, with effects as damaging as the recent steel shutdown.

Negotiations To Start

Contract negotiations between the UMW and the bituminous industry begin here tomorrow. The major UMW demands were said to include a 10 cents an hour royalty, higher wage rates, shorter work week and bargaining rights for supervisory employees.

The imminent clash between UMW President John L Lewis and the soft coal producers overshadowed federal steps to end the 11-day-old General Motors strike. Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach is expected to decide today whether he will call the parties here in a fresh attempt to work out a settlement.

UMW demands of greatest interest to industry generally are those for a royalty and unionization of supervisory employees. The bargaining on these issues will be also watched closely by members of congress interested in the enactment of strong anti-strike legislation.

Pauley recalled his protests that Ickes was mistaken, but that "Mr. Ickes brushed off my protest with: 'Perhaps I don't understand the English language.'

"Then," Pauley said, "along came Mr. Abe Fortas, Mr. Ickes' trusted undersecretary, who refused to confirm his chief's version of the purported conversation."

OPA Offers New Markup Plan
To Speed Output Of Men's Clothing

WASHINGTON, March 11—The government moved ahead today with plans to relieve the women's hosiery shortage after announcing a new price program to get more men's clothing onto retail shelves.

With both congress and the White House getting protests from stockingless women, the civilian production administration was drafting a plan to guarantee, through allocation, 1,500,000 pounds of rayon yarn monthly to hosiery manufacturers.

The plan would raise total monthly production of rayon stockings to about 18,000,000 pairs. Production of nylons is now running around 30,000,000 a month.

A CPA official said present nylon production itself was enough to give every woman a pair but that some "piggy" women were buying up everything they could find while others got none.

The OPA stepped into the acute shortages of men's clothing last night by announcing long-awaited revised price schedules designed to end hoarding by manufacturers and get more lower-cost apparel on the market.

OPA said its new program would wipe out inequities in clothing prices by substituting a new cost-plus-markup formula for the "price freeze" now in effect. It also restricts manufacturers to their highest priced line for 1942 but allows a five per cent increase to cover higher costs.

The result, OPA said, may be a slight increase in the cost of lower-priced lines—a step necessary to spur production—but will bring a compensating cut in more expensive items. Thus, it said, there will be "no substantial change" in overall prices.

CHUNGKING, March 11—Chinese Communists, fanning out 20 miles east of Mukden in the wake of withdrawing Red Army forces, were reported today to have occupied Fushun and the big coal mines around the Manchurian town.

Chinese Nationalist forces appeared to be winning a race with the Communists for control of Mukden itself, where sporadic street fighting had lulled.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's 14th division of the 22nd Army reached Mukden last night, reports from Manchuria said, and occupied strategic heights, intersections and strongholds of the city.

Marshall Off For Tokyo

Gen. George C. Marshall was leaving this evening for Tokyo where he will confer with Gen. Douglas MacArthur on the Manchurian situation.

The reports of a Soviet withdrawal from Fushun said a Communist-sponsored people's government already was in existence there.

A nationalist military source said there was no street fighting in Mukden as of today.

The arrival of the 14th Division in Mukden bolstered the position of the 25th Division, which had been spreading gradually through the city. An unofficial report said Chiang's new sixth, 52nd, 13th and new first armies were approaching Mukden.

The Central News Agency reported earlier that the Communists had seized the barracks and power plant in the eastern suburbs of Mukden and the Imperial Manchu Mausoleum in the northern outskirts.

WASHINGTON March 11—The house lined up today for its first vote on legislation dealing with the atom bomb.

House leaders hoped to complete action before nightfall on a bill to authorize the Navy to use obsolete U. S. warships in the coming atomic tests at Bikini atoll in the Marshall Islands.

Supporters of the bill said there was little or no opposition to its basic provision. Some, however, anticipated a floor battle over a move by Rep. W. Sterling Cole, R., N. Y., to impose stiff restrictions on the authority of the armed services to disclose results of the tests.

At present, the bill contains a provision which would forbid the Army and Navy to reveal any results prejudicial to the best interests of the United States. The services would, however, be entitled to reveal information to foreign nations of they believed such a move necessary and in accordance with U. S. interests.

Cole told reporters he thought this provision was far too loose. He proposed that the Army and Navy be specifically instructed to regard the results of the test just as they would any other military secret.

"Such an amendment would have the same effect on the security of the bomb as the original," he said. "And yet it would not be an implied invitation to the secretaries of war and Navy to reveal information they did not believe was against our best interests."

WASHINGTON, March 11—Former President Herbert Hoover leaves for Europe this week on a mission from President Truman to investigate a threat of starvation to millions of Europeans.

Hoover promised to distribute relief to starving peoples abroad "without differential as to race, religion or political belief." He was faced with these problems:

1. United Nations relief and rehabilitation shipments of food to liberated countries fell far short of requirements in February despite an increase in other supplies.

2. UNRRA Director General Herbert H. Lehman said the situation "grows more critical each day."

3. French Ambassador Henri Bonnet and Italian Ambassador Alberto Tarchiani appealed to Hoover for aid for their countries, offering data on critical food situations.

4. President Truman asked American newspapers to appeal to the American people in a campaign to conserve vital wheat, fats and oils.

5. Bishop Bernard J. Sheil of Chicago warned in an article in the Washington Post that the ideals for which the war was fought stand imperiled because "freedom is a hollow mockery and justice is a macabre joke to men with empty stomachs."

Hoover planned to confer this week with Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes. He has been vacationing in Florida but returned to Washington Saturday.

LONDON, March 11—The official Moscow newspaper Pravda today accused Winston Churchill of trying to start a war against Russia and warned that an Anglo-American military alliance would mean the death of the United Nations Organization.

Pravda unleashed its full fury against the wartime British premier in an editorial denouncing his speech at Fulton, Mo., six days ago. It accused him of plotting secretly against Russia all the time he was cooperating with Generalissimo Stalin during the war.

Russia Seen As Target

Everyone knows, Pravda said, that the Anglo-American alliance proposed by Churchill would be aimed at Russia.

"Who does not see that this means the liquidation of the United Nations Organization?" Pravda asked. "Thus in one stroke Churchill does away with the organization whose defender he professes himself."

"A military alliance of two partners of the coalition against the third means the liquidation of the coalition of the three great powers which was formed during the second world war. Thus in one stroke Churchill sweeps away what he had helped to build during the war."

Cautiously remarking that Churchill fancies himself as the Saviour of Europe from Communism, Pravda said his plan was "a policy of force" which would mean the end of UNO. Then it referred to his statement rejecting the inevitability of a new war.

Accusation Hurled
"In reality he was trying to convince the idea that a new war is inevitable," the newspaper said. "More than that, he was investigating a new war and calling for war against the Soviet Union."

A Moscow dispatch from United Press correspondent Henry Shapiro described the Pravda article as "bitter, vigorous language such as is seldom used" in that paper. He noted that Pravda reverted to its pre-war type of editorial castigation in branding Churchill as a hardened reactionary, war monger and hypocrite for being a false friend to Russia.

The editorial filled three columns on Pravda's front page.

While Radio Moscow was slaming at Churchill, a United Press dispatch reported the unexpected and unexplained postponement of the opening of the Supreme Soviet

BUS SERVICES

GARY, Ind., March 11—Bus and street car service within this city of 125,000 was halted by a strike of 300 workers today.

Thousands of persons were stranded or late for work, but the strike had little effect on the giant steel mills in the area. Steel mill workers customarily remain on the job until relieved by the next shift.

Private autos and taxicabs were pressed into service.

Officials of the Gary Railways, Inc., said 40 street cars and 60 buses were idle.

Two hundred operators and 100 shop and maintenance employees struck at 3:50 a. m., when the first cars and buses were scheduled to begin their runs. The workers, members of the amalgamated association of street and electric railway employees (AFL), walked out in support of wage demands.

A revolver was found near the body, and police said the wound in her left breast apparently was self-inflicted.

Union members rejected an undisclosed wage offer.

There on Wednesday, the private requiem mass celebrated for him in the All Hallows College Chapel of Dublin will be repeated before the thousands of his old friends, neighbors and classmates, before his body is placed aboard a plane and returned to his archbishopric in St. Louis.

Anglo-U. S. Military Pact Assailed As Policy Leading To War

LONDON, March 11—The official Moscow newspaper Pravda today accused Winston Churchill of trying to start a war against Russia and warned that an Anglo-American military alliance would mean the death of the United Nations Organization.

Pravda unleashed its full fury against the wartime British premier in an editorial denouncing his speech at Fulton, Mo., six days ago. It accused him of plotting secretly against Russia as all the time he was cooperating with Generalissimo Stalin during the war.

The Russian denunciation of Churchill contained more fury and invective than any Moscow pronouncement about a major world figure except Adolf Hitler. The editorial was broadcast three times.

Pravda said the proposed alliance against Russia "would be directed against that power which bore on its shoulders the main burden of the war and performed the decisive part in the defeat of Hitlerite Germany."

The editorial appeared to admit that such an alliance would "ensure Anglo-American domination over the whole world." It said Churchill wanted to use the alliance to continue British imperialistic policies.

VANDENBERG SLAPPED

Pravda slapped at Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, R., Mich., who recently urged a stronger American policy toward Russia.

"The false speeches on Democracy and freedom made by reactionaries of the Churchill type and his American friends of the Vandenberg camp will not succeed in deceiving those who are real friends of both Democracy and freedom," it said.

With bitter irony Pravda said that the only consolation Churchill finds in Eastern Europe is in Athens. "Churchill's idea if liberated Greece is a Greece where Fascist and Monarchist activity is freely carried out under the protection of British troops."

Pravda said Churchill's plan for aligning the western powers "does not lack the open formulae of a cordon sanitaire against the Soviet Union."

It accused Churchill of masking his real feelings against communism throughout the war and hiding "intentions and plans" which are hostile to the Soviet Union.

The Pravda warning of the possible destruction of the UNO appeared to refer only to developments that would follow adoption of a formal Anglo-American alliance, rather than to the present international situation.

U. S. POLICIES HIT

The Russian press and radio re-emphasized Russian differences with Britain and the United States during the weekend with attacks on American policy toward Manchuria, alleged maintenance of "Fascist" armies in the British and American occupation zones of Germany, alleged American slowness in prosecuting German capitalists and assertions that Britain is trying to keep troops in Egypt.

Pravda's attack on Churchill was of special interest because it came on the first meeting day of the day of the newly elected supreme Soviet in Moscow. Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov was expected to make a foreign policy speech before the group sometime this week.

The editorial, broadcast by Radio Moscow, was an exceptionally outspoken condemnation of one of the original big three. It pictured Churchill as a leader discredited by history.

Cool Reception Noted

"Having failed politically in Britain, Churchill decided to try his luck in the United States, obviously hoping to influence American circles kindred in thought to him," Pravda said.

"But the outcry of American public opinion gave him another disappointment. Churchill has not been recognized as a prophet, not only in his own country but even beyond its boundaries."

"The Churchill poem is the old tune to a new accompaniment. His new conceptions are doomed to just such bankruptcy as his old conceptions, which were brought to dissolution by history. Churchill is stubbornly pulling backward, but life goes forward."

"Churchill forgets that freedom-loving nations have acquired during the years of war enormous political experience and have learned to distinguish the real defenders of peace from the imperialists who, under the mendacious flag of 'defence of peace' are making plans for new unfettered imperialistic wars."

Churchill Indicted

"Churchill made pitiable attempts to stop or hold back the course of historical events...since then many years have gone by and much has come to pass, but Churchill remained true to himself. He has forgotten nothing and has learned nothing."

The British government made two formal moves against Russia during the weekend, backing up steps taken by the United States a few days earlier. FOUR STARS AND AN OAK LEAF—Maj. Sarah Bagby takes dictation from General Spaatz. The spectacles which the general is always losing and the major is always rescuing for him are seen at the left.

WASHINGTON—Gen. Carl A.

Spaatz, who may become the new commander general of Army Air Forces, is a great military leader, in the opinion of his youthful feminine aide, but needs some supervision in his personal affairs.

For example, General Spaatz has a habit of losing his spectacles. WAC Maj. Sarah Bagby, aide and secretary to the general, explains, "The general is a little absent-minded. He has a habit of forgetting his eye glasses. I always saw to it that he had his spectacles and his wallet."

Crashing the elite male ranks, the 27-year-old WAC officer from New Haven, Mo., has demonstrated her theory successfully that the job of general's aide is logically "woman's work." Recently Major Bagby received the Legion of Merit for serving as combination aide and secretary to General Spaatz.

When Spaatz was commanding general of Northwest Africa Air Forces in 1943, he sent an appeal to Washington headquarters for a WAC secretary. The then Lieutenant Bagby got wind of this and she wouldn't give the brass hats here any peace until they sent her on her way.

General Spaatz's staff, on the other hand, shuddered at the idea of breaking ranks for one girl.

The general, however, had four daughters of his own and he thought headquarters needed a feminine touch.

Naturally, the general won his point, and before long the much-dreaded WAC arrived in Algiers. "It's here," the general's chief of staff called on ahead to head-

Just how much Major Bagby enjoyed one sewing job is evidenced in a letter she wrote to her mother, Mrs. R. J. Bagby:

"The big news right now is our happiness over the boss's overdue recognition in the way of another star. About four days ago, I officially put on aide's insignia, and now they're kidding me about having to change to one with four stars on it. My job now is ripping embroidered stars off his uniform and resewing a few rows—but I've never had such pleasure from sewing before."

Major Bagby's highlight in Europe, undoubtedly, was the experience of attending the actual surrenders ceremony at Berlin. She and one other from General Spaatz's staff accompanied him. Only three women were present in the entire assemblage.

While awaiting the final negotiations "at 3:45 p. m. 8 May, 1945, Berlin," Major Bagby scribbled a historic note to her family:

"We are the first American WACs as well as part of the first group of Americans and British to enter Berlin. Had a lunch of caviar and other Russian fish. It's all most exciting!"

"Never had any idea I'd be present to see the Germans sign the formal surrender papers, but here I am—and really enjoying their sad dignity."

Major Bagby not only took time to write to her family a full record of her own experiences from time to time, but she kept General Spaatz's diary for him. Naturally, she needed no assistance on this project, since she was at the general's side throughout her period of April 21.

Major Bagby herself followed closely all the steps in the war-making and the peace-making, and she can discuss the details of operations with amazing ease for a 27-year-old girl.

In Europe, Sarah Bagby acquired a very special boy friend with whom she kept in contact throughout her stay. He won't be returning at least until next April, so Major Bagby plans to remain with General Spaatz for an indefinite period.

CASINO HOLDUP NETS $150,000 FOR 13 BANDITS

DENVER, March 11.—The Rocky Mountain News said today in a copyrighted story that the fashionable Wolhurst gambling casino was held up Sunday morning by 13 heavily armed bandits who fled with $150,000 in cash and jewelry.

The News said the gunmen looted the house of $75,000 and took another $75,000 in cash and jewelry from guests, many of them prominent Denver residents. The bandits took jewelry from the women guests and forced the men to turn over their wallets, the story said.

The Wolhurst club, located on the estate of the late Sen. Edward Wolcott South, is owned and operated by an ex-convict, O. E. Stephens, the news said.

One of the gunmen carried a machine gun, the paper said, and the holdup was completed in only 15 minutes.

troops from Iran.

Red Fleet, publication of the Soviet Navy, accused "certain groups" in the United States and China of deliberately distorting the real situation in Manchuria concerning the presence of Soviet troops there. It claimed that agents of "the Japanese military clique" are working with reactionary forces in China to injure Soviet-Chinese collaboration.

Shell Deal Charged

Still another charge against the western powers was leveled by Radio Moscow, which quoted the French newspaper Ce Soir to the effect that Hispano Suiza factory in Geneva has agreed to ship 50,000 shells for 22-mm. guns to the Spanish government. The radio claimed that Allied authorities have granted permission to ship the munitions from Switzerland to Spain via Italy, since the French-Spanish frontier is closed.

GIBSON KAISER

Gibson Kaiser, 39, of near Ashville died Sunday at 11 a. m. in Doctor's hospital, Columbus. He is survived by his aged father, Henry Kaiser.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the A. J. Hott funeral home, Commercial Point, with burial in Reber Hill mausoleum.

U. S. CHUTISTS BALK AT JUMP; 168 LOSE WINGS

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The refusal of 168 paratroopers to jump in an aerial "combat exercise" staged for the Mexican minister of war last month resulted in loss of their wings and prized flying boots, the war department has revealed.

An estimated 130 of the men who refused to jump reportedly had almost enough points to assure early discharge from the service.

The "strike" reportedly took place at Fort Bragg, N. C., although the war department did not confirm this. The department said the 515th parachute regiment was the unit involved.

The department did not say specifically that the men involved in the case were transferred to non-jumping units, but said such an action was "customary."

The men turned in their equipment preparatory to transfer, the war department statement said.

SR. SCOUT CREW TO BE FORMED MONDAY NIGHT

Complications caused the death of William Webb, 66, Circleville native at the St. Clair Rest Home, Columbus at 2:30 a. m. Monday after an illness of two years.

He was a son of Henry and Lena Withar Webb, natives of Germany. He was a tinner by trade and never married.

Survivors include a brother, Frank C. Webb, East Mount street, a niece, Lena M. Webb and a nephew, Frank Webb, Jr.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Mader Chapel, the Rev. George L. Troutman, officiating with burial in Forest cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home after noon, Tuesday.

TWO COUPLES PETITION FOR MARRIAGE LICENSES

Two marriage licenses were applied for, Monday, in the Pickaway County Probate Court.

The applicants: Herbert Frederick Ruoff, 29, salesman, Grove City, and Dorothy Louise Wellington, office worker, Route 2, Ashville. The Rev. E. C. Anderson, Columbus, was designated to perform the ceremony; Harvey Roby, Jr., 23, carpenter, South Bloomfield, and Joan Tosca, Ashville.

FUCHUN MINES AND CITY HELD BY CHINA REDS

Some of the Soviet troops moved southward from Mukden to Port Arthur and Dairen, others northward to Changchun.

Central government and Chinese Communist spokesmen alike denied that heavy fighting was in progress in Mukden, but the situation was tense as the groups jockeyed for control. Nationalist sources claimed there were 40,000 Communists west of the city who might try to storm it, 70,000 to the east and another 100,000 to the south.

Correspondents going to Dairen were turned back, and the Russians went out of their way to follow up a suspicion that American correspondents were trying to reach Harbin.

The Russians used American lend-lease P-47 Thunderbolts to prevent any such visit by tailing a Chinese plane in which they had taken off from Changchun.

Apparently the Chinese will be able to take over Mukden sooner than Changchun. In Changchun there are no Chinese Nationalist troops, and no Chinese Army headquarters.

Communist quarters denied that the Communist Armies planned a major offensive. It appeared likely that there might be heavier fighting later.

The newspaper Peace Daily reported that the police station in one Mukden suburb was attacked by "bandits"—the usual Nationalist term for the Communists.

Nobody could tell how widespread the Russian withdrawal in Manchuria was going to be. The only definite fact was that they had left Mukden.

Karen Stevens, husband of the former Miss Mary Stinson, 215 East Union street, has arrived safely at San Francisco, Calif., from Okinawa, according to a wire received by his wife.

ALLIANCE SEEN AS UNO'S DOOM, PRAVDA WARNS

Official Russian Newspaper Furiously Denounces Fulton Speech

The Russian denunciation of Churchill contained more fury and invective than any Moscow pronouncement about a major world figure except Adolf Hitler. The editorial was broadcast three times.

Praida said the proposed alliance against Russia "would be directed against that power which bore on its shoulders the main burden of the war and performed the decisive part in the defeat of Hitlerite Germany."

The editorial appeared to admit that such an alliance would "ensure Anglo-American domination over the whole world." It said Churchill wanted to use the alliance to continue British imperialistic policies.

Vandenbergs Slapped

Praida slapped at Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, R., Mich., who recently urged a stronger American policy toward Russia.

"The false speeches on Democracy and freedom made by reactionaries of the Churchill type and his American friends of the Vandenberg camp will not succeed in deceiving those who are real friends of both Democracy and freedom," it said.

With bitter irony Praida said that the only consolation Churchill finds in Eastern Europe is in Athens. "Churchill's idea if liberated Greece is a Greece where Fascist and Monarchist activity is freely carried out under the protection of British troops."

Praida said Churchill's plan for aligning the western powers "does not lack the open formulae of a cordon sanitaire against the Soviet Union."

It accused Churchill of masking his real feelings against communism throughout the war and hiding "intentions and plans which are hostile to the Soviet Union."

The Praida warning of the possible destruction of the UNO appeared to refer only to developments that would follow adoption of a formal Anglo-American alliance, rather than to the present international situation.

U. S. Policies Hit

The Russian press and radio re-emphasized Russian differences with Britain and the United States during the weekend with attacks on American policy toward Manchuria, alleged maintenance of "Fascist" armies in the British and American occupation zones of Germany, alleged American slowness in prosecuting German capitalists and assertions that Britain is trying to keep troops in Egypt.

Praida's attack on Churchill was of special interest because it came on the first meeting day of the day of the newly elected supreme Soviet in Moscow. Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov was expected to make a foreign policy speech before the group sometime this week.

The editorial, broadcast by Radio Moscow, was an exceptionally outspoken condemnation of one of the original big three. It pictured Churchill as a leader discredited by history.

Cool Reception Noted

"Having failed politically in Britain, Churchill decided to try his luck in the United States, obviously hoping to influence American circles kindred in thought to him," Praida said.

"But the outcry of American public opinion gave him another disappointment. Churchill has not been recognized as a prophet, not only in his own country but even beyond its boundaries."

"The Churchill poem is the old tune to a new accompaniment. His new conceptions are doomed to just such bankruptcy as his old conceptions, which were brought to dissolution by history. Churchill is stubbornly pulling backward, but life goes forward."

"Churchill forgets that freedom-loving nations have acquired during the years of war enormous political experience and have learned to distinguish the real defenders of peace from the imperialists who, under the mendacious flag of 'defense of peace' are making plans for new unfettered imperialistic wars."

Churchill Indicted

"Churchill made pitiable attempts to stop or hold back the course of historical events... since then many years have gone by and much has come to pass, but Churchill remained true to himself. He has forgotten nothing and has learned nothing."

The British government made two formal moves against Russia during the weekend, backing up steps taken by the United States a few days earlier. SOCIAL SERVICE OFFERED VETS BY RED CROSS

Work At Great Lakes Cited As Example Of Where Money Goes

Indicative of the use to which money donated to the Red Cross is put is the work done at Great Lakes, Ill., separation center where the majority of sailors from Pickaway county have been discharged.

Red Cross workers — Gray Ladies, arts and skills instructors, and staff personnel — are familiar figures at the Naval Hospital buildings at Great Lakes, acting as a friendly and invaluable contact between military men, their superiors, their communities, and their families.

Many Requests Handled

Calling upon the services and information of local chapters in 3,700 communities throughout the nation, the Red Cross' social service offices at Great Lakes handle a continual stream of requests from hospitalized men for family aid, solution of personal problems, and assistance in obtaining emergency leave.

Last month the unit assisted 2,261 individuals, received 887 telegrams from local chapters and other field stations, and aided in 575 emergency situations.

Another Red Cross group, the Gray Ladies, come from as far south as Chicago and as far north as Milwaukee to volunteer their services in visiting hospital wards, writing letters for patients, making purchases for them, and performing many other friendly duties.

Arts, Skills Taught

Other volunteers help with the recreational program in arts and skills by teaching in the many shops and instructing the bed patients in the wards. In classes in a wide variety of subjects varying from felt and leatherwork to plastic and woodwork, patients who never had previous experience turn out attractive jewelry, ceramic bowls, and a wide assortment of other work, and some even discover for themselves a new source of livelihood.

Also under Red Cross auspices, outside groups of entertainers, both professional and amateur bring magicians, small orchestras, and sport celebrities to the hospital wards.

PENNSYLVANIA WILL RESTORE FULL SERVICES

All restrictions and limitations on advance reservations in sleeping cars and reserved seat coach trains on Pennsylvania Railroad lines will be removed beginning March 15, the railroad announced today. Heretofore, advance reservations could not be made available until 14 days before the day of departure, under a wartime order of the Office of Defense Transportation which has been withdrawn effective March 15.

Railroad officials explained however, that because a general rearrangement of train schedules will be made on April 28 coincident with the inauguration of summer daylight saving time in the major cities, for a short period after March 15 reservations will be available only up to and including April 27. As soon as the new schedules are worked out, officials said, availability of advance reservations will be placed completely on a pre-war basis.

TWO STUDENTS TRY FOR O. S. U. SCHOLARSHIPS

F. Wayne Jones and Pat LaRue, pupils in Walnut township school, took the examination for a scholarship in the College of Agriculture at Ohio State University, in County Superintendent George D. McDowell's office Friday afternoon.

Their papers will be forwarded to the University for grading. Winners in the state-wide contest will be awarded scholarships totaling $20 per quarter or $240 for four-years work.

"No beer today."

This familiar wartime declaration greeted thirsty customers Saturday in several Circleville taverns. Some of the establishments exhausted their supply of brew Friday afternoon. Reports from several other Ohio cities disclosed a similar condition.

The beer shortage has been attributed chiefly to lack of grain necessary to make the amber beverage. Uncle Sam is reportedly shipping more wheat to the starving nations of Europe.

Some Circleville beer sellers, whose supply has not been exhausted, are restricting consumption by halting all "carry out" sales.

ERA WIFE ASKS ALIMONY, CARE OF 2 CHILDREN

Mrs.

Ellen Mae Liff filed suit Saturday in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court against Fred Liff, of Era, asking for alimony and the custody of their two minor children, Fred Liff, Jr., five, and Linda Sue, two and one-half years.

Declaring in her petition that they were married May 11, 1940 at Greenup, Ky., Mrs. Liff says that her husband was discharged from the Navy on February 5, 1946 and that since his return home he has squandered his mustering out pay liquor and that he has been abusive.

Mrs. Guy Campbell, and Mrs. Turney Pontius attended the meeting of the Kingston Garden Club at the home of Mrs. Richard Jones Tuesday. Mrs. Campbell is the president of the Circleville Garden Club.

Swiss business women are mostly engaged in the hotel business, in trade, industry, commerce, science and art.

SOCIAL SERVICE OFFERED VETS BY RED CROSS

Work At Great Lakes Cited As Example Of Where Money Goes

Indicative of the use to which money donated to the Red Cross is put is the work done at Great Lakes, Ill., separation center where the majority of sailors from Pickaway county have been discharged.

Red Cross workers — Gray Ladies, arts and skills instructors, and staff personnel — are familiar figures at the Naval Hospital buildings at Great Lakes, acting as a friendly and invaluable contact between military men, their superiors, their communities, and their families.

Many Requests Handled

Calling upon the services and information of local chapters in 3,700 communities throughout the nation, the Red Cross' social service offices at Great Lakes handle a continual stream of requests from hospitalized men for family aid, solution of personal problems, and assistance in obtaining emergency leave.

Last month the unit assisted 2,261 individuals, received 687 telegrams from local chapters and other field stations, and aided in 575 emergency situations.

Another Red Cross group, the Gray Ladies, come from as far south as Chicago and as far north as Milwaukee to volunteer their services in visiting hospital wards, writing letters for patients, making purchases for them, and performing many other friendly duties.

Arts, Skills Taught

Other volunteers help with the recreational program in arts and skills by teaching in the many shops and instructing the bed patients in the wards. In classes in a wide variety of subjects varying from felt and leatherwork to plastic and woodwork, patients who never had previous experience turn out attractive jewelry, ceramic bowls, and a wide assortment of other work, and some even discover for themselves a new source of livelihood.

Also under Red Cross auspices, outside groups of entertainers, both professional and amateur, bring magicians, small orchestras, and sport celebrities to the hospital wards.

PENNSYLVANIA WILL RESTORE FULL SERVICES

All restrictions and limitations on advance reservations in sleeping cars and reserved seat coach trains on Pennsylvania Railroad lines will be removed beginning March 15, the railroad announced today. Heretofore, advance reservations could not be made available until 14 days before the day of departure, under a wartime order of the Office of Defense Transportation which has been withdrawn effective March 15.

Railroad officials explained however, that because a general rearrangement of train schedules will be made on April 28 coincident with the inauguration of summer daylight saving time in the major cities, for a short period after March 15 reservations will be available only up to and including April 27. As soon as the new schedules are worked out, officials said, availability of advance reservations will be placed completely on a pre-war basis.

TWO STUDENTS TRY FOR O.S.U. SCHOLARSHIPS

BEER IS SHORT IN CIRCLEVILLE; GRAINS NEEDED

No beer today.

This familiar wartime declaration greeted thirsty customers, Saturday in several Circleville taverns. Some of the establishments exhausted their supply of brew Friday afternoon. Reports from several other Ohio cities disclosed a similar condition.

The beer shortage has been attributed chiefly to lack of grain necessary to make the amber beverage. Uncle Sam is reportedly shipping more wheat to the starving nations of Europe.

Some Circleville beer sellers, whose supply has not been exhausted, are restricting consumption by halting all "carry out" sales.

BUILDERS

WE Americans are the great builders of modern times—and indeed, of all times. We could probably build a group of Egyptian pyramids in a few weeks, if there was any point to it. Right now, when there is a very definite point to building homes for war veterans, we're about to show the world something in the building line never tackled before.

It is a Herculean job of building war veterans' homes, and we're going to build 'em, according to a Washington announcement, at the rate of 24 hours from cellar to chimney pot. Maybe there won't be any cellar, for all kinds of new-fangled processes may be used, but the main facts are clear. A Texas authority says they will be built with the celerity and efficiency of a lot of hens concentrated on a supreme job of egg-laying.

There is an old saying that "Rome wasn't built in a day." But it could have been in much less time than it was, with American equipment.

Better not count on yours for Wednesday of next week, however. There will be many preliminaries before fabricators can turn them out at the twenty-four-hour rate.

STALIN AND EISENHOWER

THE Soviet people have entered "a new and peaceful period of economic development," according to Generalissimo Stalin's recent announcement. This includes surpassing "pre-war levels of material well-being" but also "strengthening the military might of the Soviet State". The Red Army guarding the people's "peaceful creative labor" must advance "in the art of war to make our borders impregnable against enemies."

America's Chief of Staff Eisenhower, at the time of Stalin's declaration, spoke before a Washington audience that included disabled veterans, and said that this country's forces must be kept strong until the world is ready to repudiate force as a means of settling international difficulties. Our armies, our navies, our Air Forces, in fact our whole citizenry, always must be ready to uphold against any apparent threat the principles that we believe to be sacred."

The Russian and the American points of view on post-war military strength are alike in essence. But the Russian will be put into effect. The American may not be. America prefers to believe there are no more enemies to threaten her border, no more thieves to sneak through unlocked doors. America does not choose to remember. Russia suffered too much at home. She does not forget.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 11—Some of the most intelligent people I talked with out around the country called me aside and asked me if I thought the Russians and their world-wide communists were responsible for our tidal-wave of strikes, the ineffectiveness of our government and its failure to move in an orderly way toward reconversion.

They suspected a world revolutionary conspiracy had achieved hidden power here and was pulling strings or breaking them in high places to promote confusion and weakness amongst us.

I told them this:

I do not believe a conspiracy exists in the sense that a certain group of men have met and agreed to destroy this government. That would be old fashioned. Revolutions are not accomplished in that way in this modern day.

I do believe a thought conspiracy exists. Thought control has reached international dimensions through many modern devices, visible and invisible, by open propaganda but also by secret influence. Officials in public office are more often the tools of powerful political forces outside government than the directors of thought which they appear to be in public announcements.

The communists is a very small political group in this country. Yet the things it advocates are taken up and advocated by thousands, sometimes hundreds of thousands, and on some issues by millions of our people. The communists have found the technique of appeal here is to a sense of justice, and they have worked on this technique laboriously to induce unsuspecting and unknowing people to fight their real cause—the basic Marxian concepts of spreading confusion within capitalism and getting it to destroy itself. This is the only effective technique possible for such a domestic and world minority.

Now Hitler was at his business of influencing our minds similarly only a few years, yet he captured many an "open mind" among us. The communists have been at it for 39 years at least, with less money but no greater zeal, and no less results.

Their Marxist ideals have seeped down deep into our whole culture—not only in politics where inroads have been made against freedom of the individual and toward totalitarianism, but in where they have been able to abolish normal human concepts of beauty, in literature, the theater (but less in the movies than elsewhere I have noticed.)

Secret movements can be judged by the results they obtain.

There are only two powerful political forces at work in the world today and these are parliamentarianism (with parliaments representing free popular voting) and statism (with dictatorial control through closed elections.)

The news on the front pages each day shows the results of the conflict between these two forces—the parliamentary way and the state dictatorships—which has absorbed all other considerations.

I do not permit myself to be confused or deluded, because I measure the results of the conflict—not in arguments. I measure by whether we won or lost,

FCC Wants Radio Critics—But Why?

By Jack Gaver

NEW YORK, March 11—The Federal Communications Commission must lead a pretty sheltered life down in Washington. Its members are suggesting that radio needs some professional critics. Guess they don't get the news from New York.

If they did, they'd realize the dangerous ground on which they are treading with such a suggestion. Do they want that nice family feeling that pervades radio, where any throat-creasing or back-stabbing is purely in the nature of good clean fun, turned into a house divided as is the legitimate theater?

Consider The Theater

The theater has professional critics and what happened? Last week and this week several persons have been buying ads in the newspapers to accuse these same critics of ignorance, prejudice and unfortunate family ties, and all because they didn't like a play by Maxwell Anderson. And take literary critics, who were held up as good examples in an FCC report yesterday. No one really loves a literary critic—unless they don't like each other.

The FCC said that professional critics for air shows "can raise the standards of public appreciation and stimulate the free and unfettered development of radio." But this is open to question.

Many Are Worthless

Three-fourths of the productions of any theatrical season are worthless or near it, and this condition prevails year after year despite the valiant efforts of the critics to show what shouldn't be done. Books of value are constantly outnumbered by those that have none.

The FCC also frowned at soap operas, those endless serials of domestic woe and woe that clutter up radio's morning hours. It seemed to think that there are too many of them, but offered no constructive advice as to how people are going to know about soap if there are no soap operas.

And it suggested a check of "advertising excesses" and more time and attention for sustaining programs—the kind which bring in no revenue to the radio stations. Now, that's a touchy point.

What Does FCC Want?
What does the FCC want to do—reduce the national income? Just think of all those gag and script writers, producers and directors who make four-figure or high three-figure weekly salaries because of this advertising revenue! Does it want them to suffer on a mere $100 or $150 a week? Does it want to make them go back to work?

But to get back to soap operas. The FCC said the morning hours should have more programs of educational value. Since when was the soap opera not educational? Why, you can listen to any of them and find out all the finer points of romance, how to get married, how to get divorced, how to get married, etc. They even give lessons in how to be complete boudoirs and bounderesses.

"Axe, please!"

A JOB FOR JENNY

by Faith Baldwin

Copyright, 1944, 1945, by Faith Baldwin Cutrell

DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE
JENNY DID not go to the door with Steve. She heard him stop and say good night to Gram and Eddie. She heard the screen door close and, faintly, the motor of the car start. She sat quite still. If he wanted to be that way, she thought helplessly, angered because she was helpless, because she couldn't be of service, because she couldn't get him interested in something not only obviously his duty, but which would release his grief and self-reproach in action. She wandered into the kitchen, a little later, and stood watching Gram replace her best glasses on a shelf and Eddie take off her apron and pick up the bottle of hand lotion. She said, as Gram looked at her inquiringly, "You just can't reach him, somehow. Two, three years ago he wouldn't have been like this; he'd be out and tearing the roof off the town."

Edie said, "It's shock, Jenny," and Gram said, "You must give him time."

But, Jenny thought, the time is now. She said as much to Justice Hathaway later. He had been very considerate since Bert Barton's death. They had worked together amiably, impersonally, and she was abashedly grateful to him. And so, at the close of a busy, difficult day, when he proposed that he take her for a drive and then home, she consented weakly.

They drove out by the sea road and no wind blew, the air was still and untrailing, and the gulls cried plaintively. Jenny sat beside Justice, her bright hair curling around her small face. But when he took the turn that would bring them past what was left of the Barnacle she said, "Let's not go this way, Justice," and he nodded, and took the other road, the one which led back away from the shore line and through the mall outlying fishing town, filled, even in wartime, with summer visitors . . . a road set with salt-box houses, old trees, picket fences, covered with late roses or morning-glories, and filled with the smell of salt and sea even at this distance, a winding country road, dipping in and out of villages.

She said, "What on earth is happening to the investigation?"

Justice said easily, "Why do you distract yourself so, Jenny?"

She said, "Are you crazy? It has to be put through at once."

She said, "I was thinking how dumb I've been!"

His heart quickened. He asked cautiously, "Not about me, by any chance?"

"Yes," said Jenny. She was so tired she didn't care what she said. She thought, I may as well set him straight, once and for all, and if it costs me my job, well, I'll get another."

Jenny said, "You can't dismiss it so easily. What about the gasoline? What was it doing in—a bucket, in the drums on the place? And the liquor?"

He asked, "Are you thinking of the other night, in the garden?"

The other night? A year, a world away.

She said, "Not specifically." She laughed shortly. "When I was a kid," she added reflectively, "I was always making up stories about myself, in which I rescued people from runaway horses or from drowning or something. Always the heroine!"

He was silent. Then he asked courteously, "Whom have you been rescuing lately?"

"Ede," she said. "Oh, you know . . . it's just occurred to me that I needn't have bothered. Whatever there was between you, it's gone, and has been for a long time. Certainly, on your part; perhaps, on hers. I wouldn't know. But I would barge in, full of zeal and nobility, to prove to her that once a wolf always a wolf. Little Red Riding-hood," said Jenny bitterly.

He said, "I'm trying to follow you, but not getting very far."

Jenny said, after a moment, "It sounds so utterly fantastic. I thought if I could prove to Ede that you could be interested in me too . . ."

"Say no more," said Justice, and laughed with astonishment. "So it was just a red-headed herring across the trail, and you don't like me any better than you did before."

She said thoughtfully, "Funny thing, but I was in love with you . . . oh, in an adolescent, pleasant sort of way . . . like having a crush on a screen hero or even your high school teacher. . . . That is, before the night at the Country club."

"And then?" he inquired. "You fell out."

"Well," said Justice, "this is interesting."

She said, "I don't think so, not any more. You and Ede . . . well, it was never up to me. I could register disapproval, disgust, all the things I felt, but . . ." Her voice trailed off. She said, "I'm a dope. If Ede wanted to mess up her whole life for something that wasn't worth a darn to begin with—well, that's her business. The people concerned in it are herself and you, her husband and I, suppose," she added, "your wife, although she's never been awfully real to me, I suppose she was even less real to Ede. As her sister, all I could do about it was hate the whole business from my heart and be sorry . . . and stand by. If she had needed or wanted my help she would have asked for it. But no, I had to see myself in the angel-from-heaven role. . . . I don't any more."

Justice said after a moment, "You're making a mistake, Jenny. 'Oh,' she said, "I suppose so. It's habit forming, isn't it?"

He said, "You've said the one thing which, being honest and uncalculated, is enough to persuade me that I am really falling in love with you . . ."

DIET AND HEALTH

Diarrhea in Infancy High As Cause of Severe Illness

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IN MANY parts of this country, diarrhea in infants still ranks far too high as a cause of illness and death. Yet, not only have methods of preventing these conditions been discovered but also new aids in their treatment.

Diarrhea, of course, is only a symptom and may be produced in infants in many ways. For example, infections in almost any part of the body, such as in the tonsils or in the ears may be accompanied by diarrhea. Fever is often a cause.

Acid in Stomach

It would appear, according to Dr. Merle J. Carson of North Carolina, that these conditions cause a decrease in the acid in the stomach, thus permitting certain germs to get through the stomach into the bowel and produce inflammation and diarrhea. Diarrhea may also be caused by improper feeding of the baby and by certain medicines. It may be due to contamination of the food by germs, that is, food poisoning. It may come on as a result of infection with dysentery germs, the ameba, typhoid and paratyphoid germs. Then there is a condition known as epidemic diarrhea of the newborn, the exact cause of which has not been discovered. It is thought that it may be due to a virus, that is, an organism so small that it can pass through the openings in a poriferous filter.

Outbreaks of this disorder often occur in newborn nurseries in hospitals. Sometimes, diarrhea may develop because of over-sensitivity on the part of the infant to some food which he eats.

Protection of Food

Among the important preventive measures against diarrhea in older infants is the protection of the food and milk from contamination and spoilage, giving the infant plenty of fluids at all times, avoiding overfeeding and making sure that all water which is given is safe.

In treating any diarrhea, it is important to give plenty of fluids, to get rid of the cause of the condition, if possible, and to put the baby on the proper feeding schedule. Fluids may be supplied by injection of various solutions into a vein, such as 5 to 10 per cent glucose solution or injection under the skin of salt solutions.

Daily injections of these fluids may be necessary until the diarrhea subsides. In treating the infection within the bowel, the sulfonamide drugs known as sulfaguanidine and succinylsulfathiazole are valuable. Sulfadiazine as well as sulfathiazole are effective in treating infections elsewhere in the body.

Of course, the treatment for diarrhea should be started promptly, since the longer it progresses the more fluids the child will lose from the body and the more severe the condition will become.

modern times—and indeed, of all times. We could probably build a group of Egyptian pyramids in a few weeks, if there was any point to it. Right now, when there is a very definite point to building homes for war veterans, we're about to show the world something in the building line never tackled before.

It is a Herculean job of building war veterans' homes, and we're going to build 'em, according to a Washington announcement, at the rate of 24 hours from cellar to chimney pot. Maybe there won't be any cellar, for all kinds of new-fangled processes may be used, but the main facts are clear. A Texas authority says they will be built with the celerity and efficiency of a lot of hens concentrated on a supreme job of egg-laying.

There is an old saying that 'Rome wasn't built in a day.' But it could have been in much less time than it was, with American equipment.

Better not count on yours for Wednesday of next week, however. There will be many preliminaries before fabricators can turn them out at the twenty-four-hour rate.

STALIN AND EISENHOWER

THE Soviet people have entered "a new and peaceful period of economic development," according to Generalissimo Stalin's recent announcement. This includes surpassing "pre-war levels of material well-being" but also "strengthening the military might of the Soviet State." The Red Army guarding the people's "peaceful creative labor" must advance "in the art of war to make our borders impregnable against enemies."

America's Chief of Staff Eisenhower, at the time of Stalin's declaration, spoke before a Washington audience that included disabled veterans, and said that this country's forces must be kept strong until the world is ready to repudiate force as a means of settling international difficulties. Our armies, our navies, our Air Forces, in fact our whole citizenry, always must be ready to uphold against any apparent threat the principles that we believe to be sacred."

The Russian and the American points of view on post-war military strength are alike in essence. But the Russian will be put into effect. The American may not be. America prefers to believe there are no more enemies to threaten her border, no more thieves to sneak through unlocked doors. America does not choose to remember Russia suffered too much at home. She does not forget.

FCC Wants Radio Critics—But Why?

By Jack Gaver

NEW YORK, March 11—The Federal Communications Commission must lead a pretty sheltered life down in Washington. Its members are suggesting that radio needs some professional critics. Guess they don't get the news from New York.

If they did, they'd realize the dangerous ground on which they are treading with such a suggestion. Do they want that nice family feeling that pervades radio, where any throat-creasing or back-stabbing is purely in the nature of good clean fun, turned into house divided as is the legitimate theater?

Consider The Theater

The theater has professional critics and what happened? Last week and this week several persons have been buying ads in the newspapers to accuse these same critics of ignorance, prejudice and unfortunate family ties, and all because they didn't like a play by Maxwell Anderson. And take literary critics, who were held up as good examples in an FCC report yesterday. No one really loves a literary critic—they don't even like each other.

The FCC said that professional critics for air shows "can raise the standards of public appreciation and stimulate the free and unfettered development of radio." But this is open to question.

Many Are Worthless

Three-fourths of the productions of any theatrical season are worthless or near it, and this condition prevails year after year despite the valiant efforts of the critics to show what shouldn't be done. Books of value are constantly outnumbered by those that have none.

The FCC also frowned at soap operas, those endless serials of domestic woe and woe that clutter up radio's morning hours. It seemed to think that there are too many of them, but offered no constructive advice as to how people are going to know about soap if there are no soap operas.

And it suggested a check of "advertising excesses" and more time and attention for sustaining programs—the kind which bring in no revenue to the radio stations. Now, that's a touchy point.

What Does FCC Want?

What does the FCC want to do—reduce the national income? Just think of all those gag and script writers, producers and directors who make four-figure or high three-figure weekly salaries because of this advertising revenue! Does it want them to suffer on a mere $100 or $150 a week? Does it want to make them go back to work?

But to get back to soap operas. The FCC said the morning hours should have more programs of educational value. Since when was the soap opera not educational? Why, you can listen to any of them and find out all the finer points of romance, how to get married, how to get divorced, how to get married, etc. They give lessons in how to be complete boudoirs and bounderesses.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 11—Some of the most intelligent people I talked with out around the country called me aside and asked me if I thought the Russians and their world-wide communists were responsible for our tidal-wave of strikes, the ineffectiveness of our government and its failure to move in an orderly way toward reconversion.

They suspected a world revolutionary conspiracy had achieved hidden power here and was pulling strings or breaking them in high places to promote confusion and weakness amongst us.

I told them this:

I do not believe a conspiracy exists in the sense that a certain group of men have met and agreed to destroy this government. That would be old fashioned. Revolutions are not accomplished in that way in this modern day.

I do believe a thought conspiracy exists. Thought control has reached international dimensions through many modern devices, visible and invisible, by open propaganda but also by secret influence. Officials in public office are more often the tools of powerful political forces outside government than the directors of thought which they appear to be in public announcements.

The communists is a very small political group in this country. Yet the things it advocates are taken up and advocated by thousands, sometimes hundreds of thousands, and on some issues by millions of our people. The communists have found the technique of appeal here is to a sense of justice, and they have worked on this technique laboriously to induce unsuspecting and unknowing people to fight their real cause—the basic Marxian concepts of spreading confusion within capitalism and getting it to destroy itself. This is the only effective technique possible for such a domestic and world minority.

Now Hitler was at his business of influencing our minds similarly only a few years, yet he captured many an "open mind" among us. The communists have been at it for 39 years at least, with less money but no greater zeal, and no less results.

Their Marxist ideals have seeped down deep into our whole culture—not only in politics where inroads have been made against freedom of the individual and toward totalitarianism, but in where they have been able to abolish normal human concepts of beauty, in literature, the theater (but less in the movies than elsewhere I have noticed.)

Secret movements can be judged by the results they obtain.

There are only two powerful political forces at work in the world today and these are parliamentarianism (with parliaments representing free popular voting) and statism (with dictatorial control through closed elections.)

The news on the front pages each day shows the results of the conflict between these two forces—the parliamentary way and the state dictatorships—which has absorbed all other considerations.

I do not permit myself to be confused or deluded, because I measure the results of the conflict—not in arguments. I measure by whether we won or lost,

Diarrhea in Infancy High As Cause of Severe Illness

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IN MANY parts of this country, diarrhea in infants still ranks far too high as a cause of illness and death. Yet, not only have methods of preventing these conditions been discovered but also new aids in their treatment.

Diarrhea, of course, is only a symptom and may be produced in infants in many ways. For example, infections in almost any part of the body, such as in the tonsils or in the ears may be accompanied by diarrhea. Fever is often a cause.

Acid in Stomach

Would appear, according to Dr. Merle J. Carson of North Carolina, that these conditions cause a decrease in the acid in the stomach, thus permitting certain germs to get through the stomach into the bowel and produce inflammation and diarrhea. Diarrhea may also be caused by improper feeding of the baby and by certain medicines. It may be due to contamination of the food by germs, that is, food poisoning. It may come on as a result of infection with dysentery germs, the ameba, typhoid and paratyphoid germs. Then there is a condition known as epidemic diarrhea of the newborn, the exact cause of which has not been discovered. It is thought that it may be due to a virus, that is, an organism so small that it can pass through the openings in a porcelain filter.

Outbreaks of this disorder often occur in newborn nurseries in hospitals. Sometimes, diarrhea may develop because of over-sensitivity on the part of the infant to some food which he eats.

Protection of Food

Among the important preventive measures against diarrhea in older infants is the protection of the food and milk from contamination and spoilage, giving the infant plenty of fluids at all times, avoiding overfeeding and making sure that all water which is given is safe.

In treating any diarrhea, it is important to give plenty of fluids to get rid of the cause of the condition, if possible, and to put the baby on the proper feeding schedule. Fluids may be supplied by injection of various solutions into a vein, such as 5 to 10 per cent. glucose solution or injection under the skin of salt solutions.

Daily injections of these fluids may be necessary until the diarrhea subsides. In treating the infection within the bowel, the sulfonamide drugs known as sulfaguanidine and succinylsulfathiazole are valuable. Sulfadiazine as well as sulfathiazole are effective in treating infections elsewhere in the body.

Of course, the treatment for diarrhea should be started promptly, since the longer it progresses the more fluids the child will lose from the body and the more severe the condition will become.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a difficult and dangerous year, in which little is to be accomplished of a constructive or practical nature, if self-indulgences, whims, queer urges and emotions are permitted to dominate the life.

Jealousy, arguments, hurts, over-sensitivity and all manner of indiscretions but incite or confuse. The best remedy is to take a vacation where the lofty aspects of such qualities may find expression in forms of artistic culture. Beauty and charm in all spiritual phases give poise and inner values, "Loaf and invite your soul" is sound advice and eventually of lasting force.

A child born on this day will have an idealistic, emotional, sensitive and possibly strange and inexplicable nature, with little equipment for the realistic and practical. Its artistic and higher cultural and spiritual quality should be suitably developed and nurtured.

A JOB FOR JENNY

by Faith Baldwin

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE
JENNY DID not go to the door with Steve. She heard him stop and say good night to Gram and Ede. She heard the screen door close and, faintly, the motor of the car start. She sat quite still. If he wanted to be that way, she thought helplessly, angered because she was helpless, because she couldn't be of service, because she couldn't get him interested in something not only obviously his duty, but which would release his grief and self-reproach in action. She wandered into the kitchen, a little later, and stood watching Gram replace her best glasses on a shelf and Ede take off her apron and pick up the bottle of hand lotion. She said, as Gram looked at her inquiringly, "You just can't reach him, somehow. Two, three years ago he wouldn't have been like this; he'd be out and tearing the roof off the town."

Ede said, "It's shock, Jenny," and Gram said, "You must give him time."

But, Jenny thought, the time is now. She said as much to Justice Hathaway later. He had been very considerate since Bert Barton's death. They had worked together amiably, impersonally, and she was abstractly grateful to him. And so, at the close of a busy, difficult day, when he proposed that he take her for a drive and then home, she consented wearily.

They drove out by the sea road and no wind blew, the air was still and untroubled, and the gulls cried plaintively. Jenny sat beside Justice, her bright hair curling around her small face. But when he took the turn that would bring them past what was left of the Barnacle, she said, "Let's not go this way, Justice," and he nodded, and took the other road, the one which led away from the shore line and through the mall outlying fishing town, filled, even in wartime, with summer visitors . . . a road set with salt-box houses, old trees, picket fences, covered with late roses or morning-glories, and filled with the smell of salt and sea even at this distance, a winding country road, dipping in and out of villages.

She said, "What on earth is happening to the investigation?"

Justice said easily, "Why do you distract yourself, Jenny?"

She said, "Are you crazy? It has to be put through at once."

"I don't think so. It won't happen again. The authorities have been all through the other places, I understand. Fine-tooth comb. They have found nothing. What happened at the Barnacle was—an accident. It won't be repeated. The man is being held. No doubt he'll get a sentence."

Jenny said, "You can't dismiss it so easily. What about the gasoline? What was it doing in—a bucket, in the drums on the place? And the liquor?"

He said, "Are you thinking of it?"

"I'm thinking of it," she said.

His heart quickened. He asked cautiously, "Not about me, by any chance?"

"Yes," said Jenny. She was so tired she didn't care what she said. She thought, I may as well set him straight, once and for all, and if it costs me my job, well, I'll get another.

City Woman Writes Book

Odds And Ends Title Of The Work By Mrs. Abernethy

Mrs. Wealtha Vieth Abernethy has published a book "Odds and Ends." About the title of her book she wrote, "Odd it is, to be sure, that I should want to record my life's innuendoes at all; and the "End" is even yet not in sight! But there are seventy-five years of compressed activity behind this book, and to be allowed to reminisce is one of the time-honored compensations for growing old."

In her book she recalls her experiences as a life long resident of this community and also mentions many persons who have been outstanding in Circleville. To Mrs. Howard Jones, and the late Dr. Jones she pays tribute for their work in preserving Logan Elm. She has ink drawing of the tree printed in this book. Also the picture of Circleville in the "old 1836 days," which was drawn by the late Mr. G. F. Wittich. This design shows Circleville as it was when it was originally built, in a circle.

Mrs. Abernethy mentions the Pumpkin Show and Mr. George R. Haswell who started the fair in 1903. She has included "Call To Arms," prize winning essay by Winifred Abernethy Brown which describes the Pumpkin Show in verse.

Many people who have brought distinction and honor to Circleville are listed in her hall of fame.

Among these are John Cradlebaugh who was a member of the Ohio State Senate and also judge of the United States District Court for Utah Territory. Caleb Atwater, archaeologist, whose "Archaeologia Americana" won international attention.

Genevieve E. Jones and Eliza J. Schultze, who initiated the project of illustrating and describing the nests and eggs of all birds native to Ohio. When Genevieve died in the course of the work, her mother learned to draw and paint so that she could complete the book. Dr. Nelson W. Jones, her father assisted in the venture and her brother, Dr. Howard Jones, wrote the text from original field notes.

She paid tribute to Francis Abernethy Reeder who served as a Presbyterian missionary in Weihien, Shantung Province in China. Mrs. Reeder's intelligent and sympathetic understanding of the problems of the natives endeared her to them all.

She of course writes of Ted Lewis, and praises him not only for his success but also for the devotion he showed his mother Mrs. B. Friedman during her lifetime.

Many poems by the author are in the book as well as one which was written by Mary M. Jones entitled "Resignation."

She describes Circleville as "a quiet and busy little city in the Middle West, near enough to its frontier history and origin so as never to have lost the flavor of adventure, and still old enough to have achieved a settled character as the Ohio Garden of Eden, the jewel of the Pickaway Plains."

School Sweethearts Announce Marriage

McKinzie, Says Team Will Present Usual Strong Pitching, Defense

By Leo H. Petersen

TAMPA, Fla., March 11—Deacon Bill is at it again—molding a strong defensive ball club and hoping for some hitting.

"Hitting power is the only thing we lack," Manager Bill McKinzie moaned today as he split his 70 Cincinnati Red players into two squads for a batting drill. "Get somebody who can hit and you win pennant. Get somebody who only can field and you finish in the second division."

And he made it plain that his 1946 club is going to be in the latter category.

Hitters Big Problem

"We lack hitting power in the outfield," he pointed out. "Otherwise I'll stack my team up against any other in the league."

Trying to find hitting outfields has been a problem with "Deacon Bill" ever since he took over the reins of the Reds nine years ago. The club has spent thousands trying to cure that ill and all the investments thus far have gone for naught.

"I guess I'll have to carry a lot of rookies who are good kids for I might as well stay with them and fight our way back to the top," the manager of the Reds said. "I guess the stork isn't going to drop any .300 hitting outfields over us this time to do any good for 1946. But some day the story is going to be different. Then maybe I'll be lacking the pitching, catching and fielding I have now."

Good Defensively

"It's always something, you know. We're as good as anybody in the league at second, short, catching, pitching and defensive outfield play. But I haven't got any hitting. Get me some guys like Eno Slaughter, Terry Moore and Stan Musial to play my outfield and I'll guarantee you a pennant."

Chandler, commissioner of organized baseball in America, and William Harridge, president of the American League, conferred with Cuban diamond officials yesterday and laid the framework for the next meeting pact.

To contrast that mental picture, he named what he figured would be his starting outfield come April 16—Mike McCormick in center, Al Libke in right and Hank Sauer in left.

"They'll do defensively," he added, "but you have to have runs to win ball games and the boys out there in the pastures have to supply the power. I doubt whether my boys can."

Otherwise, he is high on his club.

He doesn't know who is going to play first or third but he feels that Eddie Miller at short and Lonnie Frey at second gives him a key-stone combination that is second to none. And he won't trade Ray Mueller, Al Lakeman and Ray Lamanno for any other catching staff.

He also will settle for his pitching although Buckey Walters is a question mark because of a bad arm.

"I'm not worried about anything except whether my outfields can hit," he said, "and a man of my age (he's 59) shouldn't have to worry that much. For I'm pretty sure they can't."

"They may surprise me, though, and if they do, we'll be rough. The other clubs aren't going to get many runs against us and if I can find some hitting among my boys we'll give them all a battle."

The chances are he isn't going to find that hitting. But that wouldn't be anything new for Deacon Bill. He's been looking for that a long time—since 1940 when the Reds not only won the National League pennant, but also the world's championship. He may find it in time, but McKinzie himself will be the first person to admit that it won't be 1946.

THRILLING PUTT MADE BY HOGAN TO WIN 4-BALL

MIAMI, Fla., March 11—Ben Hogan, who has become the game's top money winner this season, canned a great "clutch" putt yesterday when he sank a 20-footer on the 36th green to give the Jim Demaret-Hogan team the $7,500 international four-ball championship by a two-up margin over the powerhouse driving combination of Sammy Byrd and Sammy Snead.

Both Snead and Byrd, who tied off for the final hole one down, were on the 36th green in two and had easy putts. But when Hogan's plunked in the cup for a birdie-three, they didn't bother to putt out and conceded the match.

The scorer gave Byrd and Snead birdsies, but the pros in the club house agreed it was a two-up victory because the rules state that when a contestant concedes a hole, and does not putt it out, the hole is awarded to the winners.

The winners, who succeed Byron Nelson and Harold MacSpaden as four-ball champions, split the $2,000 first place money with the losers sharing $1,500.

ST. PETERSBURGH, Fla., March 11—President Larry MacPhail of the New York Yankees blandly announced today that he has signed the greatest shortstop prospect since Honus Wagner and admitted he had to bid high to get him—paying a $35,000 bonus for his signature.

MacPhail minced no words in praising the youth, 21-year-old Bobby Brown of Tulane University, who decided on the Yanks after receiving offers from every other major league club. Brown's bonus is the second highest ever paid by a big league team, ranking next to the $50,000 Dick Wakefield received for signing with the Detroit Tigers.

The dramatization that evening concerned "Electronics," and in the course of telling the story of radar and television, it demonstrated why static is heard.

Meredith Willson, Burns and Allen Show maestro, will find himself with two Summer programs, if present negotiations work out.

Harry W. Flannery, news analyst, resumes his west coast lecture series next month. His first talk will be an address to the members of the Los Angeles Ebell Club on the subject: "The Peace Depends On You," followed by at least one lecture per week in Southern California communities in addition to his daily news commentaries.

Producer Cal Kuhl, who handled the directorial reins when the "Malsie" program debuted on the air, resumes his original post April 1, replacing Bill Rosseau. Sam Taylor, also of the original setup, will take over the scripting chores from Artie Phillips.

big time, turns up as guest with Bob Crosby on his new airtime Wednesday. The singing star, who hails from Dallas, is currently being seen with Roy Rogers in "Along the Navajo Trail." Prior to her film debut a few years ago, Dale Evans rose to prominence over the airwaves. She was featured for some time as Charlie McCarthy's "singing girl friend."

RADIO NEWS NOTES

"Amos 'n' Andy," radio's veteran comedy team, have been asked by Writer David Milsten to supply an anecdotal chapter for his forthcoming book, "It Happened On The Air."

Sammy Kaye continues to welcome back to his "Sunday Serenade" musicians and singers recently discharged from military service. Latest is Tenor Don Cornell, who, prior to spending three and one-half years in the Air Corps, was one of Sammy's featured attractions.

If you heard violent static during the "Exploring the Unknown" broadcast last Sunday don't wor-tion. Penny, enacting a straight dramatic part, is winning critics' kudos for her work in the new film, "Young Widow," just released.

Bill Bivens, announcer of the Fred Waring Show, is on the verge of becoming a program producer himself. He has clients interested in two shows, one a quiz, the other aimed at helping communities to solve their juvenile delinquency problems.

Producer Don Clark, of the "This Is My Best" program, spoke lines into the mike for the first time in more than a decade recently when, during dress rehearsals, he filled in for June Lockhart, who was called away before the end of the rehearsal. At the same time Spieler Jimmy Wallington did double duty, reading both his own lines and those of Star Walter Brennan, who also was called away from the mike. Clark was once a radio actor and crooner before turning producer.

Circleville Twp. School Abandonment To Be Opposed

FARMERS RALLY, DRAFT PROTEST AGAINST ACTION

Decision Mandatory Under
New Ohio Law, Says
Supt. McDowell

Rural residents of Circleville Township were reportedly to be preparing Monday to file a formal protest against abandonment of the Circleville Township School District.

This proposed action is the result, according to reports filtering into the office of the Pickaway County Board of Education, of the County School Board's action in ordering elimination of the school district.

Abandonment Mandatory

At a meeting of the County School Board held last Wednesday night, it was disclosed by School Supt. George D. McDowell, abandonment of Circleville Township as a school district was decided to be mandatory under Ohio's new school law which was enacted by the General Assembly in 1946 and became effective Feb. 4, 1946.

Supt. McDowell explained that because there are no schools in Circleville Township outside of the City of Circleville the County Board of Education had no alternative, under provisions of the new law, than to declare the township no longer a school district.

Because members of the County School Board were somewhat dubious about the situation, Supt. McDowell said, an opinion was sought from the office of the Ohio attorney general, and the board took action in accordance with the legal ruling thus obtained. The ruling was that the township must be eliminated as a school district.

Ends School Board

Inasmuch as children living in the rural sections of the township already are attending Circleville schools, it was pointed out, the only effect of the abandonment is that the township will no longer have its own School Board.

Under the decree of the Pickaway County Board of Education the Circleville Township Board of Education composed of five members has been dissolved.

Provisions of the new state school law ordering elimination of the school district and the dissolution of the school board in any township having no schools in operation are contained in Section 4831 of the new law.

Section Is Quoted

Section 4831 reads as follows: "On or before the first Monday in February in the year 1946 and on or before the first Monday in February in every even numbered year thereafter each county board of education may, by a majority vote of its full membership, adopt a new plan of territorial organization of the school districts under its supervision. Such plan of organization shall prescribe such transfers of territory, elimination of local school districts, and creation of new school districts which, in the opinion of the county board of education, will provide a more economical or efficient county school system; and to this end, the county board of education of each county in which there are one or more local school districts which operates no schools, shall take immediate steps for the dissolution of such school districts and for the attachment of the territories thereof to adjoining school districts which do operate schools. The distribution of the territories of such dissolved school districts shall be known in the plan of district organization which such county boards of education shall adopt in 1946."

Protest Insures Delay

It was declared by Supt. McDowell that in the event a formal protest is filed by the rural residents with the County Board of Education, such filing would automatically halt temporarily the ordered abandonment of Circleville Township as a school district.

He explained further that the matter would necessarily be referred by the County Board of Education to the Ohio Department of Education at Columbus. That department would make the final decision.

Sky-High Auction Prices Reflect Shortages Here

Sky-high prices are being paid for used furniture, household goods and appliances, and farming equipment at auctions held in the Circleville area.

This was disclosed Monday by a checkup of auction sales and auctioneers.

The auctioneers readily admitted that bids voiced at public auction sales these days are higher than ever before known.

They attributed the situation to the many wartime shortages that have continued into the postwar era.

Although the prices paid are

CO-OP REPORTS RECORD SALES GAIN FOR 1945

A gain of three million dollars in volume of sales in 1945 over 1944 was reported by the state Farm Bureau Cooperative Association at its annual meeting in Columbus. Sales during 1945 reached the record high of $25,000,000, according to John W. Sims, operating manager. This figure represents an increase of over 14 per cent over sales in 1944 when they totalled approximately $22,000,000.

Savings for 1945 amounted to $509,000 from a gross margin of 5 per cent, the lowest on record. Savings returned to affiliated farm Bureau Co-op organizations included $52,000 in dividends on capital stock and current patronage refunds of $262,000. The board of directors also authorized the payment in cash of $80,000 for buying back stock issued in 1937.

Total assets of the organization have increased from $740,000 in 1938 to $7,500,000 at the end of 1945, more than ten-fold. In the last 11 years, the association has had a total sales volume of more than $130,000,000 and savings of more than $3,000,000, Sims reported.

The Chamber of Commerce will entertain the first and second Basketball Teams of the Circleville High School at their monthly meeting Tuesday evening 6:30, at Hanleys. President James L. Yost will preside and the Rev. Clarence Swearingen will be the principal speaker. Immediately following the regular session, President Yost will conduct a business and Directors meeting. TAFT'S PROTEST HALTS SCHOOL'S STUDY OF OPA

WARREN, O. March 11—The protest of Sen. Robert A. Taft, R., O., about the study of the OPA in Harding High School here today resulted in its ouster from the curriculum but high school Principal Milton Mollenkopf decreed that the students might write their congressmen as "individuals."

Taft, in a letter to Mollenkopf, complained that he received letters from students in a civics class, almost all graded with an "E" urging him to support the OPA. Taft said that apparently the OPA had extended its "propaganda campaign for its continuance" to the school system.

He said that from the letters he received from students, it was evident that only "one side of the OPA question" had been presented to them.

Mollenkopf replied that the study of OPA, its pros and cons, was a classroom subject and the pupils were asked to gather opinions from various sources. He said the study of OPA had been dropped after receipt of Taft's letter.

Protect Your Property From Termites

Tremendous damage to buildings is caused by termites every year. You can protect your property by using WOODHEALTH. Termites can not live in wood properly protected with WOODHEALTH. In addition to applying WOODHEALTH to vulnerable woods the soil around infested buildings should be treated, as subterranean termites must have regular contact with the soil to live. This is a job you can do yourself easily and inexpensively—full directions are on the label.

WOODHEALTH for poultry mites and animal ticks.

WOODHEALTH is a highly effective parasiticide. Because of its rapid penetrating properties it reaches into cracks and crevices where parasites hatch and hide during the day — kills and controls mites and ticks in poultry houses, stock shelters and barns—but does not coat the wood with a gummy film to catch dirt—does not soil fowls or animals or burn skin or feet. WOODHEALTH means healthier stock and long lasting buildings.

Supt. McDowell

Rural residents of Circleville Township were reportedly to be preparing Monday to file a formal protest against abandonment of the Circleville Township School District.

This proposed action is the result, according to reports filtering into the office of the Pickaway County Board of Education, of the County School Board's action in ordering elimination of the school district.

Abandonment Mandatory

At a meeting of the County School Board held last Wednesday night, it was disclosed by School Supt. George D. McDowell, abandonment of Circleville Township as a school district was decided to be mandatory under Ohio's new school law which was enacted by the General Assembly in 1946 and became effective Feb. 4, 1946.

Supt. McDowell explained that because there are no schools in Circleville Township outside of the City of Circleville the County Board of Education had no alternative, under provisions of the new law, than to declare the township no longer a school district.

Because members of the County School Board were somewhat dubious about the situation, Supt. McDowell said, an opinion was sought from the office of the Ohio attorney general, and the board took action in accordance with the legal ruling thus obtained. The ruling was that the township must be eliminated as a school district.

Ends School Board

Inasmuch as children living in the rural sections of the township already are attending Circleville schools, it was pointed out, the only effect of the abandonment is that the township will no longer have its own School Board.

Under the decree of the Pickaway County Board of Education the Circleville Township Board of Education composed of five members has been dissolved.

Provisions of the new state school law ordering elimination of the school district and the dissolution of the school board in any township having no schools in operation are contained in Section 4831 of the new law.

Section Is Quoted

Section 4831 reads as follows: "On or before the first Monday in February in the year 1946 and on or before the first Monday in February in every even numbered year thereafter each county board of education may, by a majority vote of its full membership, adopt a new plan of territorial organization of the school districts under its supervision. Such plan of organization shall prescribe such transfers of territory, elimination of local school districts, and creation of new school districts which, in the opinion of the county board of education, will provide a more economical or efficient county school system; and to this end, the county board of education of each county in which there are one or more local school districts which operate no schools, shall take immediate steps for the dissolution of such school districts and for the attachment of the territories thereof to adjoining school districts which do operate schools. The distribution of the territories of such dissolved school districts shall be known in the plan of district organization which such county boards of education shall adopt in 1946."

Protest Insures Delay

It was declared by Supt. McDowell that in the event a formal protest is filed by the rural residents with the County Board of Education, such filing would automatically halt temporarily the ordered abandonment of Circleville Township as a school district.

He explained further that the matter would necessarily be referred by the County Board of Education to the Ohio Department of Education at Columbus. That department would make the final decision.

Sky-High Auction Prices Reflect Shortages Here

Sky-high prices are being paid for used furniture, household goods and appliances, and farming equipment at auctions held in the Circleville area.

This was disclosed Monday by a checkup of auction sales and auctioneers.

The auctioneers readily admitted that bids voiced at public auction sales these days are higher than ever before known.

They attributed the situation to the many wartime shortages that have continued into the postwar era.

Although the prices paid are

CO-OP REPORTS RECORD SALES GAIN FOR 1945

A gain of three million dollars in volume of sales in 1945 over 1944 was reported by the state Farm Bureau Cooperative Association at its annual meeting in Columbus. Sales during 1945 reached the record high of $25,000,000, according to John W. Sims, operating manager. This figure represents an increase of over 14 per cent over sales in 1944 when they totalled approximately $22,000,000.

Savings for 1945 amounted to $509,000 from a gross margin of 5 per cent, the lowest on record. Savings returned to affiliated county Farm Bureau Co-op organizations included $82,000 in dividends on capital stock and current patronage refunds of $262,000. The board of directors also authorized the payment in cash of $80,000 for buying back stock issued in 1937.

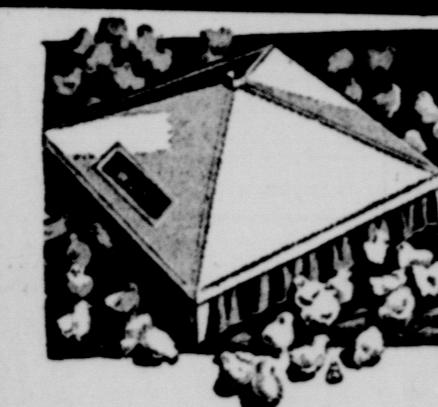

Total assets of the organization have increased from $740,000 in 1933 to $7,500,000 at the end of 1945, more than ten-fold. In the last 11 years, the association has had a total sales volume of more than $130,000,000 and savings of more than $3,000,000, Sims reported.

TAFT'S PROTEST HALTS SCHOOL'S STUDY OF OPA

WARREN, O., March 11—The protest of Sen. Robert A. Taft, R., O., about the study of the OPA in Harding High School here today resulted in its ouster from the curriculum but high school Principal Milton Mollenkopf decreed that the students might write their congressmen as "individuals."

Taft, in a letter to Mollenkopf, complained that he received letters from students in a civics class, almost all graded with an "E" urging him to support the OPA. Taft said that apparently the OPA had extended its "propaganda campaign for its continuance" to the school system.

He said that from the letters he received from students, it was evident that only "one side of the OPA question" had been presented to them.

Mollenkopf replied that the study of OPA, its pros and cons, was a classroom subject and the pupils were asked to gather opinions from various sources. He said the study of OPA had been dropped after receipt of Taft's letter.

Protect Your Property From Termites

Tremendous damage to buildings is caused by termites every year. You can protect your property by using WOODHEALTH. Termites can not live in wood properly protected with WOODHEALTH. In addition to applying WOODHEALTH to vulnerable woods the soil around infested buildings should be treated, as subterranean termites must have regular contact with the soil to live. This is a job you can do yourself easily and inexpensively—full directions are on the label.

WOODHEALTH for poultry mites and animal ticks.

WOODHEALTH is a highly effective parasiticide. Because of its rapid penetrating properties it reaches into cracks and crevices where parasites hatch and hide during the day—kills and controls mites and ticks in poultry houses, stock shelters and barns—but does not coat the wood with a gummy film to catch dirt—does not soil fowls or animals or burn skin or feet. WOODHEALTH means healthier stock and long lasting buildings.
